FROM GOTHAM TO 'FRISCO

LaFrance and DeBaux Lower the Record Four Days.

L. A. W. AND ROAD RACES

Not Deemed Wise to Act in the Matter, As the League Does Not Recognize that Class of the Sport—Cycle Paths and Good Roads—Gossip of the Wheelmen.

Two tired and dusty wheelmen rode to the city hall in San Francisco at 8:30 o'clock last night and were immediately surrounded by a group of cyclists who had been waiting many hours, in expectation of their coming. They were John LaFrance and Norman DeBaux, and they had ridden from New York to San Francisco four days faster than the existing record. They left New York city at 9:15 o'clock on the morning of June 1 and arrived in San Francisco last night at 8:30 o'clock, making the exact time 37 days, 14 hours and 30 minutes. The total number of miles covered was 3,635 3/4, or an average of nearly 100 miles a day throughout the entire trip. The best previous record was by John H. Wills, who started from San Francisco and finished in New York city. His time was 41 days, 1 hour and 45 minutes.

Some people are of the opinion that the League of America Wheelmen will be called upon to try to suppress road races. President L. A. W. officials talked with recently said that as the organization does not recognize such sport, it might be considered unbecoming for the L. A. W. to take any official recognition of the matter. Road races this year have been so unsatisfactory—there has been so much scandal and trouble, and the practice is really so dangerous—that the chances are that the local authorities will in time put a stop to the practice.

Clear-headed cyclists are beginning to see the danger to which they are drifting in the matter of good road movement. Too much attention has been given to cycle paths to the detriment of the roads. Good advice to cyclists is to work for cycle paths only when it is impossible to secure good roads. The authorities of Brooklyn, N. Y., have been given a great deal of credit for the twin cycle paths running to the ocean, while between them is a boulevard which is a disgrace to any civilized community. It was much cheaper to fix up the paths than it would have been to make the boulevard acceptable to wheelmen.

There are not many people, outside of the ranks of those who make bicycle riding a profession, who have any adequate idea of the speed attained by a wheel in full motion. Fifteen to twenty miles an hour, or even in exceptional cases, thirty miles an hour is the ordinary information on the subject, but just what it means, the casual rider has no conception. Before the camera, however, some startling proofs are shown of the terrific rapidity of motion which a wheel may take on at times. Wheelmen who are amateur photographers have noticed, however, that the shutters of their camera as fast as the mechanism allowed, a sharp picture could not be secured of a rider passing them at right angles a short distance away, although going at a moderate rate of speed. Buried cuttings caused by the motion of the image on the plate during the exposure, are the rule in such cases, and many an otherwise skilled operator has wasted photographic materials in the attempt to take a picture of a wheelman in motion. The action of a football game, the lightning quickness of a prize fight, or the speed of a driving finish in a horse race have all yielded to the modern camera. But as yet the bicycle in motion keeps a length ahead of the photographic expert.
